157 food hampers distributed this Christmas

25 per cent increase over Christmas 1994

A dozen volunteers spent several hours at the Minden Community Centre preparing more than 150 Christmas boxes for needy families in the area.

Louise Leonard, an organizer of the program, said that a total of 157 boxes were prepared.

"That's 39 more than last year," she said.

With an increase of 25 per cent, Leonard said it was difficult to find enough drivers to deliver the packages.

Most of the upstairs portion of the community centre was stacked with packages as volunteers sorted items according to the needs of the families and prepared the boxes for delivery.

Local businesses, service clubs and individuals donated food, money and labour for the project.

Reverend Brian Parker of St. Paul's Anglican Church in Minden says usage at the food bank is increasing and he expects the trend to continue.

He observed that in the past, most people who used the food bank were unemployed and/or transients. But more people who might be considered middle class, with jobs, are finding it impossible to make ends meet without some help from the food bank.

The Food Bank completed its move from the church to the Valu-Mart Plaza on Saturday.

HELPING HANDS: Volunteers prepared 157 Christmas boxes for people in the Minden area.

Ladurantaye returned as board of education chair

Board of education trustee Wendy Ladurantaye has been elected to serve another year as chair.

The election took place December 20.

The Anson, Hindon and Minden trustee took over as chair halfway through the last academic year when former chair, trustee John Munro of Sherborne et al, was transferred in his work and had to move out of the area. Ladurantaye was vice-chair prior to his resignation.

Dysart trustee Len Salvatori, who moved into the vice-chair seat at the same time, was elected to continue in that position.

Ladurantaye will in all likelihood face a difficult year. The provincial government's economic statement of November 29 reduced transfer payments to school boards by nine percent province-wide. It isn't yet clear what, precisely, will be the impact on the Haliburton board.

Provincial finance minister Ernie Eves had commented at the time that around 30 percent of the cost of education in boards goes into administration, and the government would like to see this number reduced.

This cost, however, includes bussing, which, in Haliburton is rather an essential expenditure. Haliburton's own numbers, based on criteria established by the Ontario Public School Boards Association (OPSBA), not including

Ladurantaye

ON PATROL: The Minden detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police will have a presence on the snowmobile trails of the county once again this year thanks to a donation from Highland Marine of Haliburton. Constable Mark Davis, seated, recently took delivery of two Arctic Cat ZRT 600 snowmobiles from business owner Chris Wagg. The machines will be used to patrol the trails and assist the police and search and rescue. For more details, see story on page 15.

45 students are members of Ridgewood's Breakfast Club

by Christine Bryant, Grade 8 student

Ridgewood Public School started a breakfast program in November, 1995 for students from Kindergarten to Grade 6, who are in need of a nutritious breakfast. The school has been providing breakfasts three times a week.

Many schools are involved and, with the help of community members, the Legion and local businesses, it has been a success.

About 45 students use the program regularly. The school plans to continue the breakfast program as long as there is a need.

CIBC

We would like to thank all of our clients for making 1995 the most successful year ever for CIBC. We are extremely proud of our involvement in the community this year, including the sponsoring and running of a free weekly basketball clinic for youths ages 10-13. We were involved in the sponsoring of a minor league baseball team and mixed slow-pitch team this past summer. We are proud to be involved with the new advertising in both the local arena and curling club. We also joined the Adopt-A-Highway program and are responsible for the cleaning of a stretch of highway between Sandy Bay Road and Northern Timberhouse. We are very honoured to be a part of the Minden Community. We wish you and yours a very successful 1996.

Making a difference in a troubled world

by Carol Moffatt and Andrew Milne

Gerry Fischer spent last winter in Bosnia, wearing United Nations blue and attempting to keep the warring parties apart. Two years before that, he spent six months with the UN in Cambodia, overseeing the elections of 1993.

It's a difficult life, he says, not without frustrations, though not without rewards. And through periods of seeming global ennui in which the value and effectiveness of UN have been questioned; and in the wake of Somalia, in which the reputation of the Canadian military has suffered, Fischer, still believes in what he's doing.

"You do have periods," he says, "when your mental state is low... You're away from home for a long time, it's difficult, and you do question why you're there. But it normally doesn't last for long. You say hey, 'I'm doing something good for someone'. It may not be readily evident, but you know that in some small way there's a purpose to your being there."

Fischer was born in and lives in Kitchener, but has family and friends in the Haliburton County area. His mother, Carol, operates the fish and chips take-out at Hall's Lake, and he has been a frequent visitor to the area over the last eight years. He, his brother Brad, and some friends from the military recently bought property in Gelert, to have something to call their own, and somewhere to get away from it all.

He joined the infantry reserves in May of 1983, as he says, "to get a chance to stick my toe in the water of the military". He's been in ever since, and expects to stay in until mandatory retirement. He's now a sergeant in the Highland Fusiliers of Canada, a unit with its headquarters in Cambridge.

Reserve units serve on a part-time basis. Unlike the regular army, in which service is a full-time job, reserve soldiers generally train one night a week, and a weekend or two a month. Every once in a while more intensive training is worked in as well — Fischer, for example, received parachute training in a three week course in Edmonton.

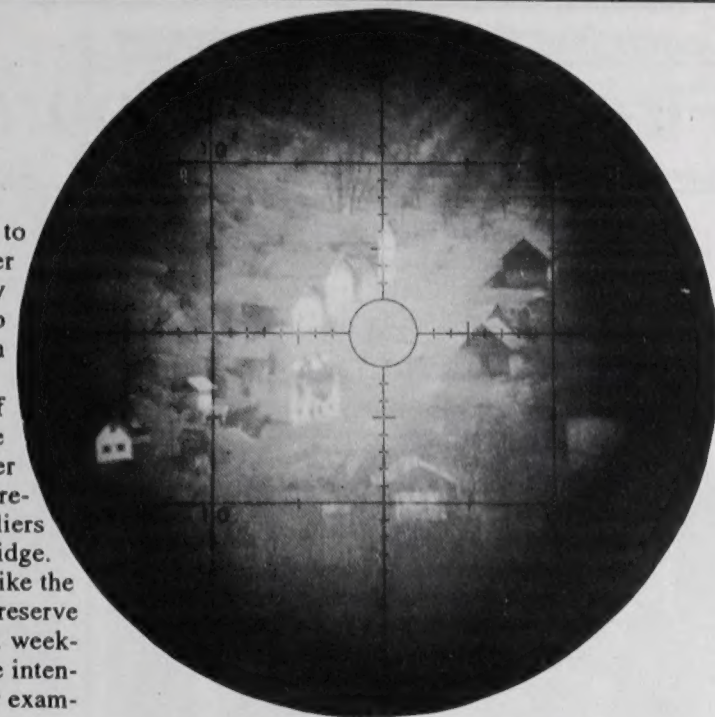

Between tours, Fischer works in landscaping and construction. Canada, unlike the US, has no job protection for reservists, so he's generally on his own to find work after he's been away for half a year.

Serving in the reserves, overseas in particular, has given him an outlook on life, a valuable self-respect, he takes back with him between tours of duty.

"It gives you a good sense of satisfaction and accomplishment, and the camaraderie and friendships you make in the military are unequalled anywhere else... We call it common bonding through shared hardship. Basically it's a very difficult job to do, very physically and psychologically demanding. So the friends you make there, because of the harshness of the environment, are stronger. We're strong believers that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link, so the bonding is very strong."

Bosnia

Fischer was stationed in Bosnia for six months, during the winter of 1994-1995, as part of a UN peacekeeping force. The UN was there, he says, to attempt to protect the general population from the effects of war as much as possible, and to protect humanitarian aid convoys. Much of his unit's duty was in observation posts.

Says Fischer, "We were monitoring the fighting. If there were incidents where civilians were targeted, we'd attempt to determine the origin of the artillery or whatever fire so the political structure could try to deal with it and bring some pressure to stop those occurrences... It's quite a hilly, mountainous country with lots of valleys, so you try to get on hilltops just for better observation — normally where you can oversee the confrontation line between different factions."

He's less pleased with the results of the UN mission to Bosnia, which he describes as frustrating.

"It was not really tedious, but the job was not nearly as satisfying — there was not the feeling of accomplishment. There was no outcome. There's still an ongoing war there."

"We did do a number of things," he says, "which directly helped the people — guarding schools, hospitals... You put a little observation post in the school or hospital, and you fly the UN flag on the roof. Which means if that structure is targeted, that's the same as firing on a UN outpost... We helped to get schools and hospitals opened. I was involved in an exchange with the New Zealand (military) company. We did some painting in the schools to get them ready for the kids. While I was also in Visoko with my battalion, we did some work in the school and hospital. Minimal, but basically just our presence there kept it open."

Learn Not To Burn program

Fire prevention course a hit at ASES

by Jerry Grozelle

Schools in Haliburton County have a comprehensive fire safety program called Learn Not To Burn available to teach children some valuable lessons about fire prevention and how to avoid being victims if a fire should occur.

The Learn Not To Burn program has been made available to all county elementary schools by the local fire departments with sponsorship from Canadian Tire Corporation. It consists of three binders of information, lesson plans and posters. Each binder is tailored to a specific age group, covering the range from Kindergarten to Grade 8.

Pam MacKinnon, a student teacher at Archie Stouffer Elementary School this fall, learned about the program through family friend Tony Aymong, who is a volunteer fire fighter with the Stanhope Fire Department. She got the okay from ASES principal Peter Forgrave and started working with the program early in November with Bonnie Berry's Grade 5 class.

MacKinnon said she worked with the program "a couple of times a week, as time permitted."

The program has 25 key safety tips, including such areas as fire safety during the holidays, in the kitchen, at school, in the home, the value of smoke detectors, water safety, first aid and others.

"It's a really good program," MacKinnon said enthusiastically. "All the lessons are pre-planned and the kids really liked it."

The program was developed in the United States and other resource materials, such as videos and additional posters, are available from a U.S. supplier.

Two members of the Stanhope Fire Department volunteered their time to bring a truck to the school and do a presentation. MacKinnon contacted Anson, Hindon and Minden fire chief Bill Hogg, who approved the Stanhope volunteers' involvement within his jurisdiction.

The two firefighters, Steve Archibald and Shaun Perrin, brought some fridge magnets and posters with them. The in-class session included some demonstrations of the equipment firefighters use, questions and answers and the two firefighters recounting experiences from fires battled.

"The kids were thrilled," MacKinnon said. "They made up thank-you cards for Steve and Shaun."

Archibald is a natural for the program. He is a director at Medeba Adventure Learning Centre in West Guilford. He says having members of the fire departments attend classes is a great way to supplement the Learn Not To Burn program.

Firefighters can often give examples of how the lessons in the program have saved people and add the firefighters' perspective to the presentation.

"It's great for the kids," Archibald said. "It lets the kids know we're there for them and that we're real people. I really enjoyed it myself. We had a lot of fun."

Archibald said the presentation included reality and seriousness with a bit of humour.

"It was fun and practical," he added. "We'd like to do it again. It was nice of Minden to let us go there. I think it was appreciated by the kids, and we appreciated the opportunity."

Archibald acknowledged that the three Rs are important, but, he said, "life skills are important too."

MacKinnon is finished her student teaching. Her four months at ASES completed her requirements, and she received her teaching certificate before the school closed for the Christmas holidays.

A former student at ASES herself, and a resident of the Minden area, MacKinnon is hoping to do some supply teaching in area schools.

She was really impressed with the Learn Not To Burn program.

"I hope they continue with it," she said.

CHECK IT OUT: Members of Bonnie Berry's Grade 5 class, with student teacher Pam MacKinnon and Stanhope firefighters Shaun Perrin and Steve Archibald, pose for a photo after the kids had the opportunity to check out the fire truck. The volunteer firemen came to ASES to assist with the Learn Not To Burn Program.

The frustrations of peacekeeping

Though no one in his unit was killed or wounded, Fischer has been under fire. Speaking calmly, he remembers the experience as "an interesting feeling."

"I have been in situations where rounds have been flying through the air, and they've been pretty close to me, and you think, a couple more feet to the left or right, and that would have gone through me."

He's also seen fighting, strictly as an observer, in which people have been shot and killed. Due to the nature of his mission, he was unable to intervene. That, he says, is frustrating.

"Of course you don't appreciate it," he says, "when lives are taken in any situation and being powerless to prevent the loss of life. It's frustrating. When you go to another country and you're there to help the local people, you want to do everything you can. That's just your normal mindset. So not being able to help before something has happened is frustrating, and only being able to respond to something after something has happened is — difficult."

UN duty, says Fischer, is difficult at first, partly because the aims of a UN mission tend to be somewhat incompatible with military experience. Trained to be aggressive, to initiate, and to confront, soldiers serving with the UN have to learn different instincts. The pre-mission training helps, he says, but it can still be complicated, at least for a while.

"It's tough," he says. "But you quickly get into the mental state where it gets easier... You still can't forget the fact that you're in a situation where your life is threatened. The military training to defend yourself and the people you work with is still useful."

Peacekeeping missions, he says, have definitely been an education.

"You go with certain preconceptions — black and white — and when you get there you realize that everything is grey. There are no good guys, and no bad guys. Everyone participates equally in what's going on. When I was in Bosnia I saw the factions involved in all sorts of nonsense. In Cambodia, the Khmer Rouge were supposed to be the bad guys, but I saw the government military doing strange things that I wouldn't think they would do. So there's no black and white."

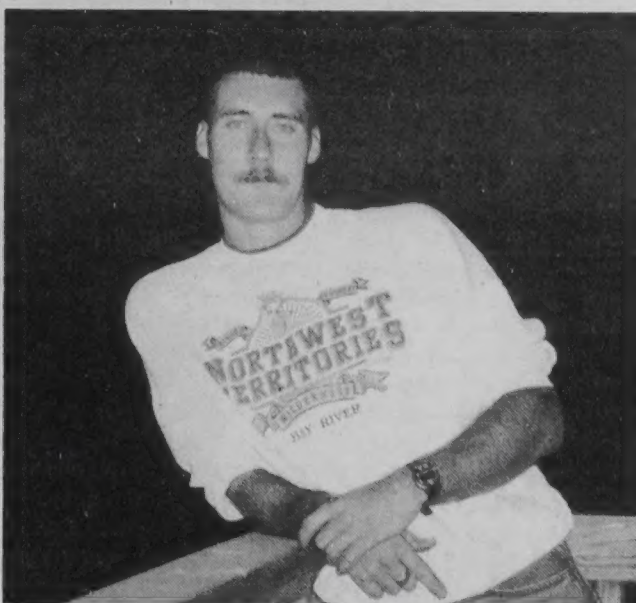

"You go to places where there's been fighting for a period of time, and there isn't anyone who is blameless, guiltless, or innocent. When there's fighting, atrocities happen. Lives are taken. That's war, and it's a terrible thing... And most situations where there's ever been a war, innocent people get in the way. And you have to accept that fact. You can try to stay aloof and not be judgemental. It makes your job easier."

No place like home

Fischer says there's a lot about serving overseas he liked. One important fact is how much it made him appreciate Canada.

"You appreciate the Canadian lifestyle a lot more, because it's so peaceful, so secure... No one's lobbying shells, or rockets at you. Every time you go for a drive you don't have to be on watch for snipers. It makes you appreciate what we have in Canada, and how good we have it here."

"At the same time it makes it very difficult to deal with the people who have never been to the Third World, never been in a difficult situation, and are running Canada down... I have a much greater appreciation of Canadian lifestyles. Overseas I saw the abject poverty, how quickly life is taken, the terrible conditions that people in other places of the world live in... And then I come back to Canada and I see the dissatisfaction with our culture, and it's like, hey, try visiting somewhere else in the world and you'll be satisfied with what you've got."

Fischer also says he appreciated the moral support from home while abroad.

"I received excellent support from people up here in this area — it really was nice to get letters — sometimes from people I've never even met before. It really makes you feel warm to know that someone you'd never met took the time out of their own day to write to a Canadian soldier overseas — mail from home is a very significant thing for your own well-being. For some of those who didn't get a lot of mail, or no mail at all, it was kind of difficult for them seeing guys getting mail or parcels from home. When people were getting really good support from home, it made their tour a lot easier. I really appreciated the letters."

Police report

Eight charged in Liquor Store B&E

Charges have been laid in connection with the break-in and theft of about $2,000 worth of liquor from the Haliburton Liquor Store on December 11.

Constable Ben Manuge of the Minden OPP got a break on December 18 which led to the arrest of four local adults and four local youths.

Charged with break and enter and possession of stolen property are: Travis Powers, 24, Leigh Parrin, 18, David Webb, 19, and John J.R. Smith, 20.

The young offenders cannot be named. Court date has been set for February 7, 1996 in Minden. None of the liquor was recovered.

OPP theft prevention tip

Snowmobiles are a popular target for thieves. To help prevent the theft of snowmobiles that are left at the cottage, OPP officials recommend removing the skis from your machine and taking them home with you. Skis are readily removed by taking out a bolt on each ski. The skis should fit easily in the trunk of a car.

This precaution should stop random thefts.

Wishful thinking?

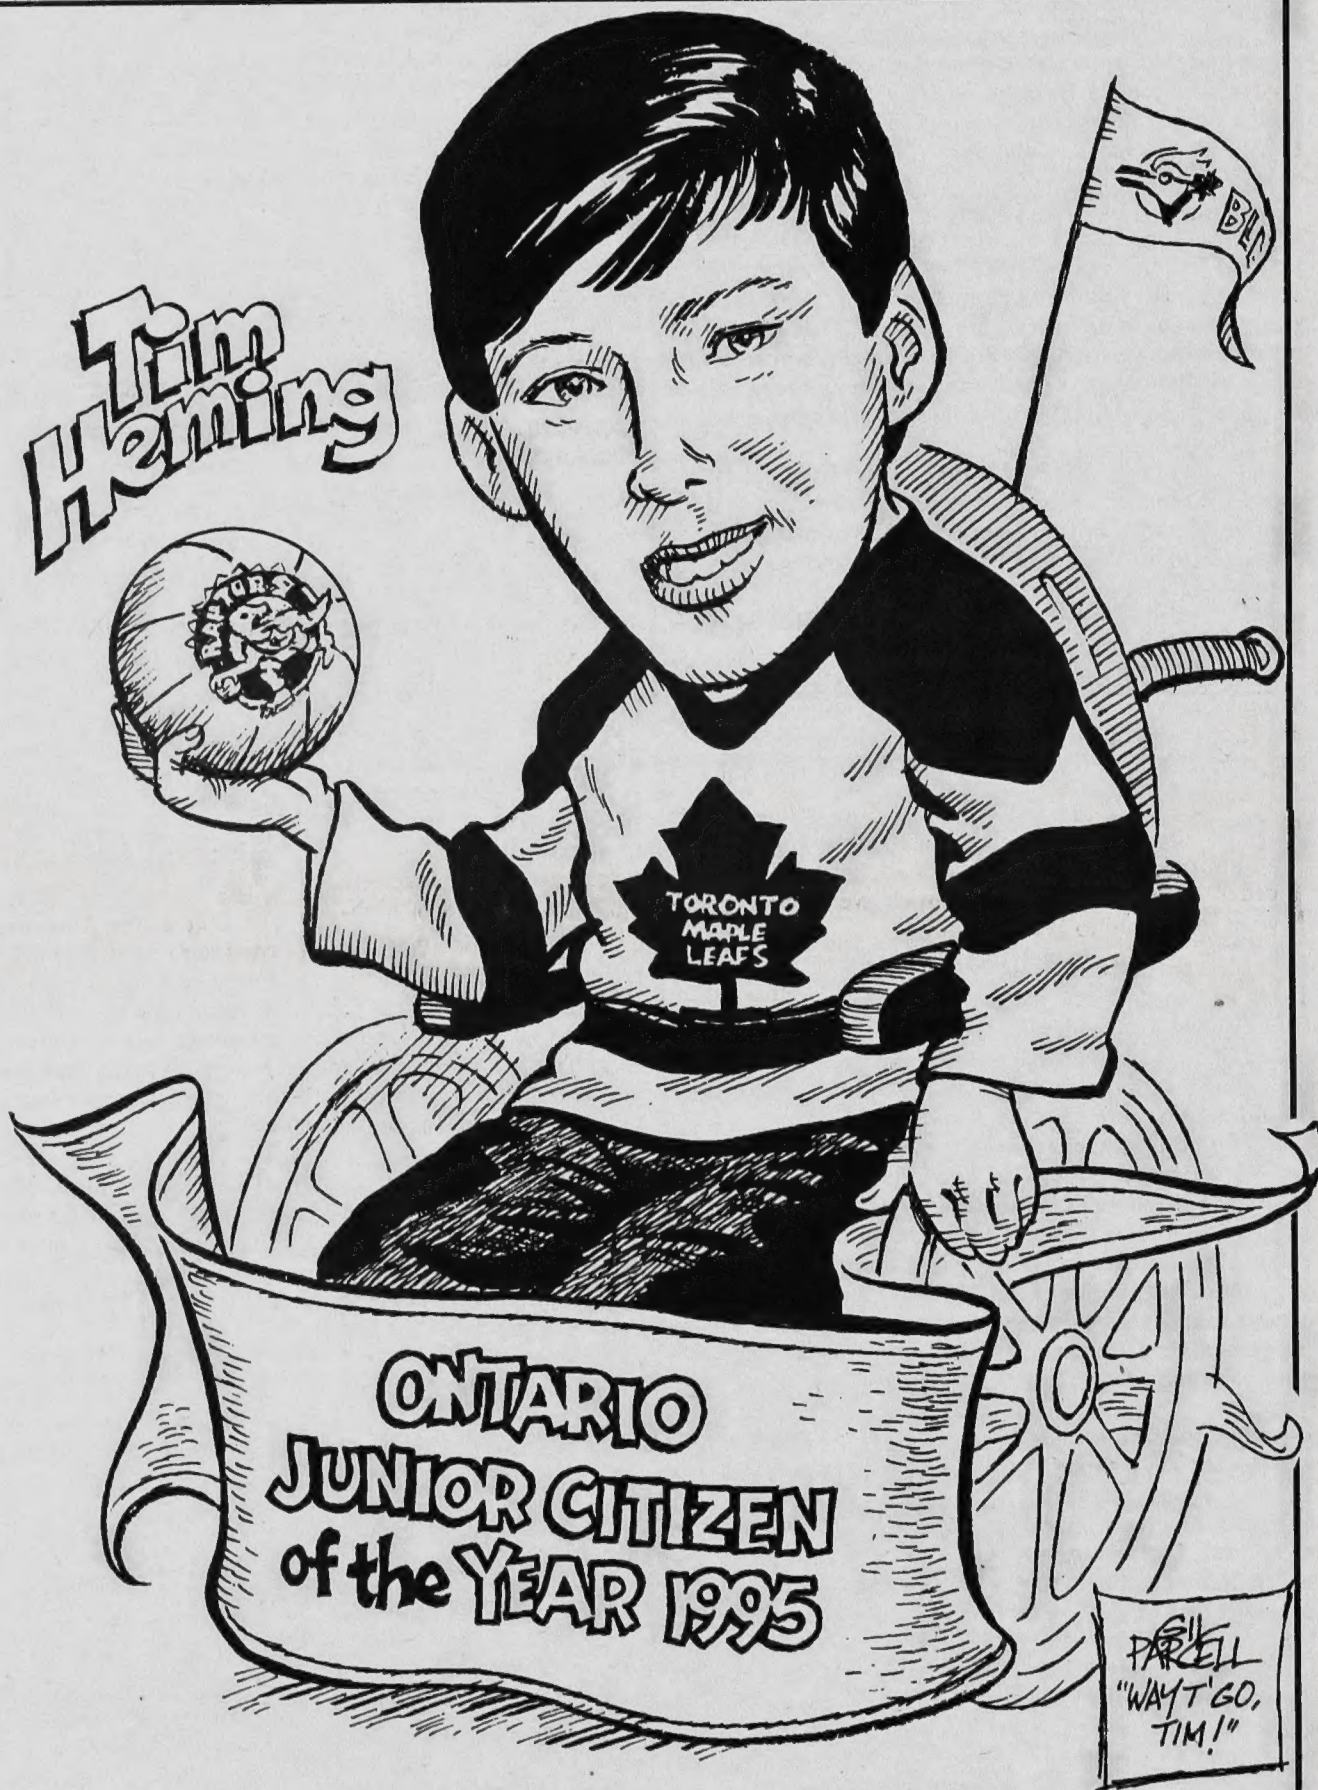

Certainly the most contentious issue to occupy the attention of Minden and area residents over the past year has been the upheaval experienced by our health services. It was a year in which there seemed to be little, if any, stability. As quickly as a firm footing appeared to be established in one area, it disappeared in another, leaving everyone bewildered and confused. Despite the multitude of changes and the evolving provincial medical services policy, we believe the new year will bring in a period of stability and consolidation in medical services. A number of factors point in that direction:

- The Lions Community Medical Clinic has provided a firm base from which to attract and retain physicians to Minden. There are still things to be worked out, however the commitment the service club has made to the future of health care in the Minden area bodes well for the coming year.

- In tandem with this effort, the Community Committee for Physicians, continues its efforts to attract doctors to our area. A considerable number of doctors and graduating students have responded to the group's advertisements, with several expressing a strong interest in making Minden their home. More work has to be done in this regard, however, the community is well served by having this group of volunteers available to co-ordinate the promotional effort and welcome prospective physicians to our community.

- This effort is being helped by the attitude and policies of the provincial government in encouraging doctors to move to rural areas of Ontario. These policies coupled with the Underserved Area designation and access to the "Bill 50" exemption (which allows recruitment of out of province doctors) will assist in the recruiting efforts.

- Perhaps the most significant event of this coming year will be the incorporation of the Haliburton Highlands Health Service Board and its subsequent assumption of responsibility for the operation of the two hospitals and eventually Hyland Crest Home for the aged. First, this move will bring the decision-making home. It won't make the decisions any easier, but at least it means that local conditions will be taken into account when decisions are made. We expect local control to result in greater co-ordination and integration, improved services and a more attractive environment for medical practitioners. We expect that local control will also result in a better utilization of resources and improved community support. In addition to giving the community greater control over the future of its health care services, this should also result in the long awaited improvements and changes to the hospitals and Hyland Crest.

Is this all just wishful thinking? Some might think so. However, we believe the changes that were made in 1995 and the anticipated reforms of the coming year will evolve into the stability this community has long desired in its medical services.

Fishing for answers from MNR

Editor:

Let me tell you why I am fed up with our Ministry of Natural Resources.

I just received a mailing from MNR, Pembroke office. The covering letter was signed by a bureaucrat in the Huntsville office. Also included was a news release with the following heading: MNR Adopts Local Recom- mendations for New Trout Fishing Regulations.

This smacks of ministerial arrogance, window dressing and rubber stamping. Let me explain. The Haliburton Highlands is one of five areas targeted for new trout fishing regulations. These unpopular measures include lake closures and slot size limits (a live bait ban was averted due to lobbying efforts--thank you Mr. Hodgson and the businesses who made the effort.)

The past two years, the MNR made rather poor attempts at pretending to want public input by holding a few public meetings that were poorly promoted and sadly attended. Last year's change in government prevented these new regulations from being rammed through by MNR.

The new twist in 1995 was the formation of local advisory committees in the five affected areas. This would have been a good idea except for the way it was done in our area. Mr. Flemming, the local MNR area supervisor, was allowed to choose the committee members. That's like letting the fox decide on who's to guard the hen house. The public at large didn't appear to know that this committee even existed and exactly who were the members?

I have been operating a resort on Boshkung Lake for the past 13 years. I couldn't find one businessman in the community who was approached by a committee member for their views and opinions. I was flabbergasted to read in the above press release that Mr. Hodgson thanked the committee members for all their hard work and indicated he will continue to work with them.

What work did they do? What creative new solutions did they introduce? All I see is a very big rubber stamp of what was on MNR's draconian agenda two years ago. Now MNR is attempting to pull the wool over our eyes and insult our intelligence by passing off their agenda as "local recommendations."

This ministry still has credibility problem with anglers, outdoors groups, tourism operators and the public at large. Hush, hush appointments of lame duck committees should not be confused with "the process of finding local solutions to local problems."

The public deserves better than this.

'Don't sell TVO'

(The following is a copy of letter sent to the Ontario Minister of Citizenship, Culture and Recreation, Marilyn Mushinski.)

Dear Ms. Mushinski,

Thank you for your letter of December 14 and your expression of understanding for our "TVO-less" plight here in the Haliburton region. I am sure your colleague, and our MPP, Chris Hodgson has also been speaking with you about his support for rectifying our situation.

We also appreciate your kind words about the sustained effort and commitment people here have made in order to demonstrate how much we want to be able to get TVOntario.

The "high value these citizens place on the province's educational broadcaster" (to use your words) extends to our conviction that to sell TVOntario to a private (read: commercial) broadcaster would be to kill it. I am sure you have seen the spate of articles in the press over the past few months spelling out the disastrous effect that privatizing this exceptional, award-winning public broadcaster would have.

I wholeheartedly endorse this position. As you are undoubtedly aware, the product being sold in commercial (read: private) broadcasting is the viewer — you and me. We are bundled up in the form of ratings and sold to the highest bidder on the basis of these numbers. For the most part, programming is just the stuff they put in between the commercials. For this reason and many others, public broadcasters are an essential part of our culture. They provide an alternative to the bottom-line oriented, lowest-common-denominator programming that dominates the tube.

Proof? If commercial broadcasters were going to give us the kind of high-quality, stimulating, thoughtful programming TVOntario provides as a matter of course, they'd already be doing it! I urge you and your Cabinet colleagues to keep TVOntario in the public sector.

Susan Wilson
Representative, Haliburton County
Southcentral Regional Council,

Quotes

...on journalism

Like Latin, journalese is primarily a written language prized for its incantatory powers, and is best learned early while the mind is still supple. Every cub reporter, for instance, knows that fires rage out of control, minor mischief is perpetrated by vandals (never by Visgoths, Franks or one vandal working alone), and key labour contracts are hammered out by weary negotiators in marathon, round-the-clock bargaining sessions, thus narrowly averting threatened walkouts. The discipline required for a winter storm is awesome. The first reference to the seasonal precipitation is "snow", followed by "the white stuff", then either "it" or "the flakes", but not both. The word snow can be used once again toward the end of the report, directly after the discussion of ice-slicked roads and grim highway toll.

Last words

The grave's a fine and private place

But none, I think, do there embrace.

Andrew Marvell

Too true Andrew. Whatever else the Death Experience might offer, it does not appear to be a barrel of guffaws. Or, for that matter, a love-in full of hugs and kisses.

Death is a serious and solemn business, and more's the pity. Death could use a horse laugh or two.

Not to mention a little truth in advertising. Consider epitaphs--those little lines of praise engraved on tombstones supposedly to tell the Living a little bit about the Departed.

Did you ever read an honest epitaph?

Probably not.

Ambrose Bierce defined an epitaph as "an inscription which hopes that virtues acquired by death will have a retroactive effect."

There's a story about Charles Lamb, the British writer. Apparently as a child, Charles was walking through a graveyard with his sister, reading epitaphs on tombstones--all full of "beloved" thises and "virtuous" thats.

Charles turned to his older sister and asked, "Mary, where are all the naughty people buried?"

Good question Chuck. Herewith a compendium of epitaphs, real and imagined, that--if they don't make it to granite immortality--should have.

American wit and writer Dorothy Parker:

Excuse my dust

George S. Kaufman, American playwright:

Over my dead body!

Black'n White

by Arthur Black

You don't have to be famous to create an immortal epitaph. Consider this offering from a very plain tombstone in a cemetery in Edinburgh, Scotland:

*Beneath this stone a lump of clay
Lies Uncle Peter Dan'els
Who early in the month of May
Took off his winter flannels*

In a Ruidoso, New Mexico cemetery you will find a stone that reads:

*Here lies
Johnny Yeast
Pardon me
For not rising*

An attorney in Rockford Illinois by the name of John Goembel got the epitaph most lawyers would probably settle for out of court:

*Goembel

1867-1946

The Defense Rests

And has anyone--poet or magistrate--summed up the hazards of dangerous driving more succinctly than a chiselled tombstone in Uniontown, Pennsylvania?

*Here lies the body of Jonathan Blake
Stepped on the gas
Instead of the brake*

An old maid's gravestone in Scranton, Pennsylvania is brutally honest:

No hits, no runs, no heirs

But for all time, no-nonsense brevity I would have to wave the chequered flag in favour of Arthur Haine of Vancouver, Washington. Mr. Haine was an atheist, it seems--and an unapologetic one at that. His tombstone inscription reads:

Haine Hain't

A brighter Christmas

Christmas was made a little brighter for families in the county thanks to the many donations received at the Minden Chiropractic Clinic in the Heritage Plaza. Dr. Janis Guthie and staff member Linda Weir invited clients and the general public to drop off food and toys at the clinic to be included in the Christmas baskets distributed just before the holiday. Louise Leonard, left, representing the Christian Sunday School Mission in Minden and Ave Petch, right, of the Four C's in Haliburton took delivery of the donations just before Christmas. Dr. Guthie, second from right, and Linda Weir were on hand when the volunteers arrived to collect the donations.

Peewee B Monarchs split holiday contests

by Kim Emmerson

A pair of home games resulted in a win and a loss for the Minden peewee B Monarchs over the Christmas Holidays.

The Fenelon Falls team visited Minden on December 21. The game ended in a 2-1 win for the Monarchs in this close contest.

It was just the second time Minden has played the Fenelon team this season.

Matt McCord opened the scoring at the mid point of the first period, assisted by Brad Gauley. Gauley scored a goal of his own in the second, assisted by Jamie Doan.

Jeremy Davis was back in the Monarchs' net and he allowed only one goal.

A total of 13 players were available to suit up for the game.

Mariposa 6, Minden 1

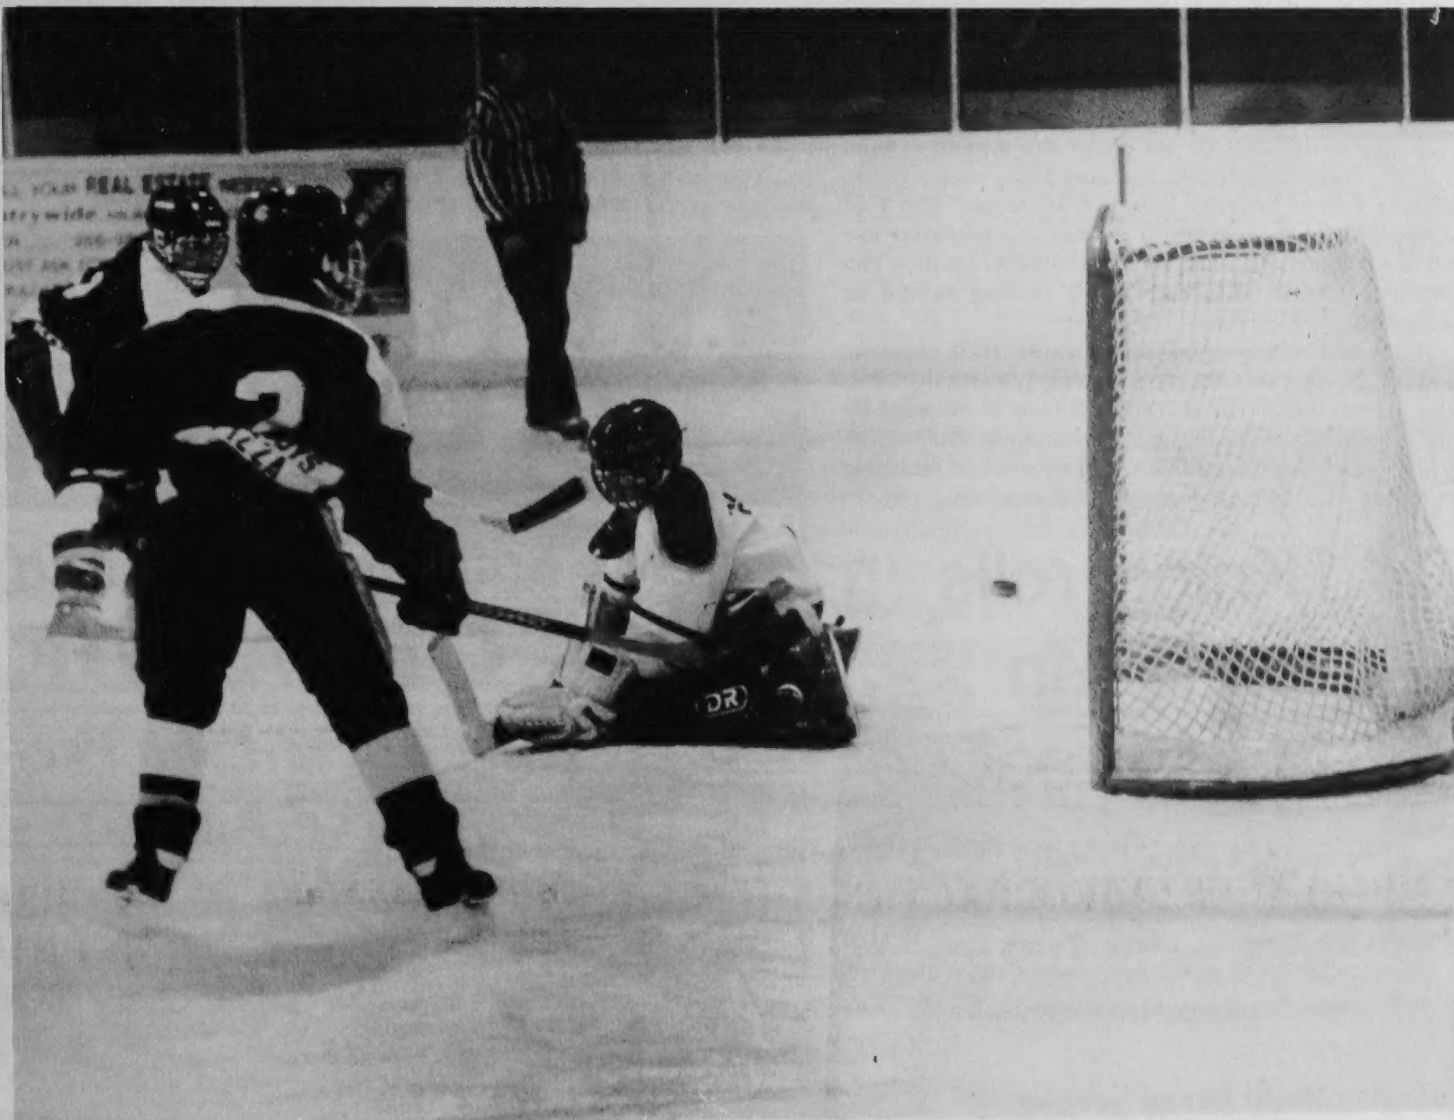

Minden hosted the Mariposa #2 team for the first time this season on Thursday, December 28. This post-Christmas game looked like it would be a nail-biter until the third period.

Perhaps our boys ate too much turkey as Mariposa scored five unanswered goals in the third period to take a 6-1 win.

This Mariposa team has Matt Arsenault on the point. Most players and parents recognize this young man from former years. He is a very large boy. His shot is very large too! Most of the home town boys tried to stay clear of him near the boards.

Scoring for Minden was Matt McCord, who managed to guide the puck into the bottom right corner of the net with his long reach.

This was the 22nd game of the season for the Monarch peewee B team.

TOUGH THIRD PERIOD: A five-goal third period gave the Mariposa #2 Lightning squad a decisive 6-1 victory over the Minden peewee B Monarchs last Thursday evening in Minden. Matt McCord was the lone marksman for the Monarchs. The two teams went into the third period tied at 1-1, before Mariposa jolted the Monarchs with five unanswered goals.

Mariposa bantams bow 3-2 to Monarchs in Tri-County play

by Roger Hutchinson

The bantam B Monarchs started the Christmas Holidays on a happy note after defeating the Mariposa Lightning squad 3-2 on December 23.

Minden got off to a strong start, placing two lightning bolts between the opposition's pipes midway through the first period. Rod Upton's marker was unassisted, while Cam Neville assisted Mike Hamilton on the Monarchs' second goal.

At the end of the second period, the score was still 2-0 in favour of the Monarchs.

Mariposa came out strong in the third frame, and jolted the Monarchs off their game with two quick lightning bolts of their own. The play was end-to-end, with Minden regaining the lead with four minutes left in the game. Upton was the marksman, assisted by Dan Vanderlip.

Although Minden outshot Mariposa in the first two periods, Adam Payne had a good game in front of the mesh and made several key saves.

With a double minor penalty handed out to the Monarchs late in the game and an added attacker with the goalie pulled, Mariposa really put the pressure on.

With some miraculous defense, the tally remained 3-2 in favour of the home town squad.

The game's officials handed out five minor penalties to Minden and six minors and a game misconduct to Mariposa.

Chris Little, is a recent addition to the Monarchs' roster. His presence now gives the team a full slate of defense-men.

The Monarchs will travel to Honeywood (near Barrie) for a tournament on January 4. Thanks to Carnarvon Building Supplies, Miners Bay Plumbing and Modern Electric for their co-sponsorship of this tournament.

A tournament is also in the planning stages for Bancroft in April.

Heavy snowfalls have put area deer herd in jeopardy

MNR, HHOA prepare emergency deer feeding plan

Recent heavy snowfalls across Ontario's deer range have severely hampered deer movement between their food supplies and shelter areas. This condition usually starts when snow depths reach 50 or more centimetres, but in the Muskoka and Sault Ste. Marie areas, more than 100 cm of snow fell between December 9 and 10.

"We are very concerned about how these heavy snowfalls might be affecting deer," said Natural Resources Minister Chris Hodgson. "MNR field staff across Ontario have been carefully monitoring the situation through weekly checks of snow depths and snow crusts."

At key snow stations set up by the ministry, wind chill and snow compaction are also being measured to estimate Winter Severity Index (WSI) levels. The WSI allows resource managers to predict the potential impact the winter will have on deer survival so they can determine if and when emergency feeding should be conducted.

In several wintering areas, or yards, trail breaking by snow shoeing or with snowmobiles has begun. Carefully placed trails will allow much freer movement by deer between their feeding and shelter areas. This activity will also help to establish a trail network to facilitate the distribution of emergency food if required.

Many groups and individuals across the province have met with ministry field staff to discuss how they can help deer this winter. If the current rate of snowfall continues in Ontario's central deer range, an emergency state could be reached by early February. At that time,

Winter Severity Index determines the need for emergency deer feeding

MNR will work with local clubs and groups such as the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association (HHOA) to implement an emergency feeding program.

Ted Vasey, president of the HHOA, said Friday that association members and MNR staff have already begun grooming trails for the deer.

He has been in communication with MNR personnel for more than two weeks, making plans for the implementation of a deer feeding program should that become necessary. Vasey said the WSI is already close to the point where a feeding program may be necessary, but if conditions improve, it may delay the need.

"Nothing has been nailed down yet," Vasey said. "But we're co-ordinating how we're going to do it when the time comes."

Vasey says he's sure the association will be feeding by the first of February, or before, unless conditions improve.

Snowmobile deaths and injuries analyzed

A survey of snowmobile accidents in Ontario over a five year period concluded that factors contributing to injuries and fatalities include impairment due to alcohol, excessive speed, riding on highways, riding on ice, and riding after dark.

The study also found teenagers and young adults are more than twice as likely, relative to their participation in the sport, to be injured. Alcohol was a significant factor in teen fatalities. Snowmobilers over 35 years of age, however, though involved in fewer incidents, are involved in more fatalities, particularly drownings.

The overall rate of fatalities has remained essentially stable as measured against the number of active snowmobile operators, however, though the amount of distance travelled by a single snowmobiler has increased.

The Ministry of Transportation of Ontario (MTO) contracted the study. A independent research firm developed profiles of accidents from 1988/89 to 1992/93, using data from the MTO, the Office of the Chief Coroner, and the Ontario Trauma Registry.

Highlights of the findings are:

■ The number of active, operating snowmobiles in Ontario is estimated to have been between 156,000 and 200,000. The number is thought to be relatively stable during the five-year period examined.

■ Although the number of machines has remained relatively constant, the average distance travelled annually by a single snowmobiler is estimated to have increased from about 1600 km in 1990/91 to 2500 km in 1992/93.

■ The rate of snowmobiling fatalities remained essentially unchanged over the five-year period, varying from 24 to 28 fatalities per 100,000 active snowmobiles.

■ Teens and young adults have the highest rates of snowmobile injuries, relative to their population and snowmobiling participation. Rates of 21.7 injuries and 19.5 injuries per year per 100,000 population of teenagers (16-18 years) and young adults (19-24 years) respectively, are about two and a half times higher than the average of 7.9 injuries per 100,000 population for all ages combined.

■ Snowmobilers over 35 years of age are involved in fewer accidents relative to their participation level in snowmobiling, but are involved in relatively more fatal incidents, particularly drownings. They were involved in 31 percent of all fatal crashes, compared to 22 percent of non-fatal incidents.

■ On-highway incidents account for a high proportion of all early season injuries — 55 percent of injuries in December or earlier occurred on Ontario roads.

■ Snowmobiling injury rates on trails are lower than the rates at other riding locations in Ontario. Fatality rates (per 100,000 active snowmobiles) on trails are about one-quarter that for all riding locations combined; injury rates are about two-thirds as high.

■ More snowmobiling victims live in Metropolitan Toronto and in Sudbury Regional Municipality/District than any other locales in Ontario — one in every five injury victims and one in every three fatalities reside in one of these two ar-

Cubs, Beavers support Food Drive

HELPING THE CAUSE: Robert Stevens of the First Minden Cubs did his part to help with the Christmas Food Drive by collecting this box of donations from members of the Minden Beavers and Cubs. He is seen here at the food drive headquarters in the Minden Community Centre with leader Colleen Stevens and Food Drive organizer Louise Leonard.

Ridgewood Family Christmas Night a success

by Mary Kilby and Pamela Frey Grade 7

A Family Christmas Night was held at Ridgewood Public School on Tuesday, December 19.

Students and their parents had the opportunity to make a variety of Christmas crafts, including gift boxes, wrapping paper, pine cone crafts, buttons, gift tags, braided wreaths and magic reindeer food.

If they got hungry, the participants could decorate their own gingerbread cookies and get a drink of hot chocolate or cold punch.

Mr. Caputo's Grade 6 class members were selling crafts they had made.

"Rudolph's Auction" was held in the gym. Tickets on several treasures that the students brought from home were on sale.

Young and old alike lined up with smiles on their faces to see Santa Claus.

A Trumpet Book Fair was held in the library, where buyers got one book free for every one purchased. The fair was popular, with many people buying books.

Ridgewood recipe books were also on sale. Money raised from this project will go to the Playground Equipment Fund, which currently stands at $15,000.

While all this was happening, the Ridgewood Choir tape was playing over the PA system.

Everyone had a great time at Ridgewood Public School that night.

eas.

■ One-third of snowmobiling injuries occurred in the Southern Ontario snowmobile region. One-quarter of the injuries occurred in each of the Central and Northern regions, and the remainder occurred in the Northwest region.

■ Collectively, Sudbury (District and Regional Municipality, 10 percent), Cochrane (8 percent), Kenora (7 percent), Parry Sound (7 percent), Muskoka (6 percent), Algoma (6 percent), and Simcoe (6 percent) accounted for half of all snowmobiling injuries.

■ Almost three-quarters (71 percent) of snowmobiling injuries occurred on the weekend, when recreational participation is highest.

■ A much higher proportion of Ontario snowmobile drivers in fatal accidents had been drinking (74 percent) compared to drivers in all types of motor vehicles (21 percent), compared to drivers in fatal motorcycle incidents (43 percent), and to involvement in fatal powerboating incidents (51 percent).

■ Underage drinking is a significant factor in snowmobiling fatalities involving 16 to 18 year old drivers: half (53 percent) of 16 to 18 year old drivers had been drinking prior to the crash in which they were killed.

■ About 37 percent of snowmobile injuries involved excessive speed, compared to 9 percent for all types of motor vehicles combined.

■ Almost 50 percent of young (less than 12 years) snowmobile injury victims were not wearing helmets when they were injured.

bussing costs, say that the board spent 9.79 percent overall on its administrative costs in the last fiscal year.

Ladurantaye has commented that provincial-level politicians and bureaucrats tend to be more familiar with the problems of urban areas, and that in Haliburton, as the only board covering a large geographic area, it will be far more difficult to find places to cut that won't hurt the classrooms.

Said Ladurantaye, "We have one board in this area. There is no duplication in service... We may be the only board in the province that is like this. And when you're small to begin with, you're not the board that tends to keep popping up in their minds."

Snowmobiles on loan to OPP for winter patrols

Thanks to Highland Marine in Haliburton, the Minden detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police will be maintaining a high profile on Haliburton County snowmobile trails. The local Arctic Cat Dealer has donated the use of two ZRT600 Arctic Cats for the 1995-96 season.

OPP officers will use the machines to patrol for Motorized Snow Vehicle Act violations and to keep an eye on cottages, hopefully to prevent some break-ins.

Constable Mark Davis is in charge of the snowmobile patrol and he says some of the officers are prepared to volunteer their time on days off to work the snowmobile patrols.

"Everybody is pretty enthusiastic," Davis said.

"The machines will be used as manpower permits," Davis added. "They will be utilized as much as possible."

Davis said the Minden detachment will be working in co-operation with the Lindsay and Cobocok detachments on occasion, when personnel is available.

"We will be trying to maintain as high visibility as possible," Davis said.

This is the second year of the snowmobile loaner program. Last year, Prentice-Berry of Minden loaned the Minden OPP two machines.

The value of volunteers

The Worldwatch Institute designated the 1990s as the Turnaround Decade when we had to undergo a fundamental shift to living in balance with the planetary factors that support us and our lifestyles.

It's a daunting challenge in the face of a recent poll in Canada that indicated widespread pessimism and despair for the country's future. Viewed from other parts of the world, this gloom must be mystifying. After all, this nation has immense wealth in food, minerals, energy, forests and an educated populace capable of creating anything we need or want.

But we are caught up in the political mindset that seems to be obsessed by the economy above all other considerations. In the opportunistic rush to appear to be fiscally responsible, federal and provincial governments jettison services that maintain our social and ecological well-being. At the same time, large corporations and the wealthy receive tax concessions and breaks on the long discredited assumption that benefits will "trickle down".

People and communities seem to have become an oppressive burden for government. Yet, decades of unprecedented economic growth and technological change have been accompanied by severe ruptures in family and neighbourhood, growing disparities between rich and poor and massive ecological degradation. Leaders don't lead when they keep urging more and more corporate and economic growth, especially the destructive notion of "Jobless economic growth" which is having severe social and environmental consequences.

Before we can develop alternatives to our current path, we have to define fundamental values that are non-negotiable, then build political and economic strategies that will ensure their protection. That's not what we are doing. Politicians are buying the self-interested arguments of the corporate community for ever-increasing profits while economists claim to provide the tools to guide us into a better economic future.

The economic-corporate perspective views activity that fails to contribute to an exchange of money as unproductive. That's because progress and productivity are measured by growth in the GDP. By this criterion, staying home to be a full-time parent is unproductive. (StatsCan estimates the value of "non-productive" unpaid household work to be between $234 billion and $374 billion.)

Living frugally and opting for quality rather than quantity is less productive than over-consuming and extravagant living. Conservation of resources and energy, protection of old-growth forests and sustainable harvesting of renewable resources do not contribute as much to GDP growth as wasting energy, clear-cutting forests and overharvesting.

If we seek to realign our lives with the productive capacity of the biosphere, we must celebrate our great natural and human treasures. Our ecological treasures include an extraordinary variety of diverse ecosystems, from the Arctic tundra to rainforests, grasslands wetlands and desert.

Our human resources are equally remarkable. Ever since the David Suzuki Foundation was formed to seek and communicate sustainable solutions to the ecological crisis, volunteers have made its work possible. Hundreds of people contribute not only donations, but services, talent and time. Each year, across Canada, volunteers provide millions of hours in services that would cost tens of billions of dollars but are perceived as economically unproductive.

Of course, women disproportionately contribute their time and energy in the volunteer sector. My wife, Dr. Tara Cullis, taught writing at Harvard University. After five years, she found that environmental issues had become more urgent and more time consuming and left her salaried position to spend five hectic years as a full time volunteer, putting in gruelling hours for no pay and little recognition. Long after I would have given up, she kept at it and got the foundation up and running with paid staff and a donor base that enables us to eschew government funding.

Across this country, volunteers such as Tara are staffing food banks, helping the sick and needy, fighting to stop chemical pollution, and working to improve schools. Without volunteers, Canada as we know it would be a radically different nation. They are the glue that holds society together, providing a sense of sharing, co-operation and caring and reinforcing the feeling of community. Volunteers contribute mightily to the conditions that make a healthy economy possible.

Right now, we are looking for imagination and leadership, not the failed formulae of cut and slash in government spending while encouraging ever higher corporate profits. Let's use the last five years of the Turnaround Decade to recognize and nurture the human and ecological resources that make this such a fortunate country.

Around the County Town

by Times Staff (call 286-1288)

Editor's Note:

A tradition at The Times came to an end with last week's edition of the newspaper. After countless years of chronicling the comings and goings of our community, Jeanne Sears has decided to retire.

Jeanne has served this newspaper for over 16 years under this editor as well as the previously called newspaper, The Minden Progress. She has also contributed to other area newspapers. I know our readers will miss her weekly reports. We wish her well in her 'retirement' and thank her for her many years of keeping the community informed.

Around the County Town will continue as a regular feature in The Times. During the month of January, submissions for the column will be compiled by Times staff. If you have an item to be included in the column, please drop it off at The Times office, 134 Main Street in Minden, fax it to us at 286-4768 or call the number above. The deadline for each Monday's edition is Thursday at noon.

A new writer will be taking over the column in early February. We will introduce him to our readers with his first column.

A reminder to members of Branch 636 Seniors Group - there will be no pot lucks or meetings in January and February at Minden Legion due to weather conditions.

Branch 636 euchre game winners for December 21 included Verna McDonald and Murray Mackinnon with most lone hands, Barbara Trask and Harry Stuart with the highs and Ellen Holden, Bill Menard, Marg McAfee, Jeanne Sears and Vivian Anderson.

The Times staff wishes to thank sincerely Marg Miller, Darlene Johnson and Jeanne Sears for bringing in such lovely goodies for the holidays. Everything was delicious!

Some residents of The Terrace enjoyed their planned Christmas dinner December 25 with most contributing to the feast. We had fifteen stay-at-homes but had a great time together.

Helen Skelding enjoyed Christmas at her son Bill and daughter-in-law Marilyn's home. Twenty-six sat down for dinner and everyone arrived home safely despite the inclement weather.

Brad, Maggie and Donna Robinson of Toronto visited Florence Robinson and had dinner at the Jack Shaw's.

We note that the Minden Community Food Bank and the Put The Word into Action Clothing Depot are amalgamating to better serve our community. They will open in the ValuMart Mall early to mid-January. In an emergency situation you can call St. Paul's 286-2541 in the mornings only or Judith at 286-6788.

Sure have been a lot of people in town during the past week. It looks like the great winter conditions have brought them to the area to enjoy the skiing and snowmobiling. It is also a pleasure to see so many students home for the Christmas break.

Sincere sympathy to the families and friends of the late Gerald Crego, Harry Forbes and Elgie MacKay who all passed away recently.

Jeanne Sears retires as Around the County Town columnist.

Kinette quilt draw winner

Shirley Hewitt of Minden, centre, was the winner of a quilt which was hand made by Jean Marsh, left, in the Minden Kinette Club Christmas raffle. Kinette president Marg Prentice, right, presented the prize to the winner. A pine hall bench, made by William Moore of Kinmount was won by Audrey Trumbull of Minden and a Christmas basket donated by Tom Prentice and Sons Trucking of Minden was won by Cathy Howe of Minden.

IN MEMORIAM

COOPER, Genevieve - In loving memory of a dear sister who passed away December 30, 1991. From our happy home and circle God has taken one we loved. She is borne from sin and sorrow To a nobler rest above.

No one knows how we miss her. None but aching hearts can tell. Lost on earth, but found in Heaven.

Jesus doeth all things well. Lovingly remembered by sisters Hazel, Shirley and Brenda and brothers Glen and Dennis.

BULL, Lorne - In loving memory of a dear son and brother who passed away December 31, 1992.

God took him home, it was His will, But in our hearts we love him still.

His memory is as dear today As in the hour he passed away. We often sit and think of him When we are all alone, For memory is the only friend That grief can call its own. Always remembered and sadly missed by Mother, two sisters, relatives and friends.

TRUMBULL, Tony - In loving memory of our dear grandson, son and brother who passed away four years ago January 5.

We can't have old days back When we were all together But secret tears and loving thoughts

Will be with us forever. Sadly missed, remembered by Grandma, Dad and brothers.
